There are certain disbursements which will be set out in the individual lease relating to the property. Some disbursements may apply depending on the term of the lease. We will update you on the specific fees upon receipt and review of the lease from the seller's solicitors.

Anticipated Disbursements

- Deed of Covenant fee – This fee is provided by the management company for the property and can be difficult to estimate. Often it is between £75.00 - £150.00. The seller often has to ensure that the buyer enters into a deed of covenant with the landlord/managing agent or Management Company. In this way the landlord or management company has a direct contract with the buyer and prior notification of the new lease.
- Purchase of a pre-sale pack if you are selling your property you will need to procure this for the Buyer and the costs varies considerably between different Landlords and managing agents and is typically between £150.00 to £350.00.

These fees vary from property to property and can on occasion be significantly more than the ranges given above. We can give you an accurate figure once we have sight of your specific documents.

You should note that you will be required to settle service charges and ground rent up to the completion date.

An Expedition fee may be charged, at the value of £250.00 per contract, where exchange is required within 28 days of receipt of the contract and is a condition of the contract.

Abortive costs refer to work that has been started or carried out on the sale which is no longer going ahead.

We ask for £150.00 on account at the outset and confirm that all charges will be charged at cost with any shortfalls/surpluses being dealt with at completion. If the matter does not proceed to completion and search fees have been incurred, we shall only refund the balance held on account which have not been used for the provision of services.

Insurances. Indemnity policies may be required by a solicitor and are usually paid for by the seller but on occasion the buyer pays. It may be required in the event that there are defects in title revealed which require the protection of an insurance policy. These are bespoke and will be advised upon at the appropriate time if required to enable the sale to proceed.

Where we act for you and your lender, we charge a lenders fee of £100.00 on your mortgage redemption.

How long will my property sale take?

How long it will take from your offer being accepted until you can move in to your property will depend on a number of factors. The average process takes around 1-3 months and it can take as long as 6 months depending on various factors set out below.

It can be quicker or slower, depending on the parties in the chain.

A list of some unforeseen factors

- legal title is defective, or property is unregistered
- a defect in title which requires remedying prior to completion
- If you have failed to obtain building regulations or planning permission for works you have carried out or which have been carried out by a previous owner
- If crucial documents have not been provided
- Property restrictions such as a seller who has several debts secured against the property being sold or who is bankrupt
- Issues to do with leasehold title and restrictions involving service charges and management structure which may need separate consideration for example where this is an ongoing or organised programme of works for block repairs or refurbishments
- We are reliant on the seller's solicitors providing landlord or the landlord sale company, management packs and answering any enquiries that may be raised from this
- In leasehold sales there can be a delay in obtaining a leasehold information pack from the managing agents which can take up to a month and they require payment in advance

Generally speaking, the sale of your property can go through more quickly if all parties to the transaction are co-operative and there is no unreasonable delay from third parties providing necessary documentation.

If there are any unexpected complications during the sale of the property, we will always inform you and discuss any potential consequences and impact on price before additional fees are incurred.
